Prisoner Who Fleed Jail in Kentucky Is Captured

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP)—Tilford Lee Marshall, 48, who escaped from the Lexington county jail at Smithland, Ky., Oct. 21, was arrested early today in Kentucky about a quarter mile from the Elizabeth town, Ill., ferry landing.

Marshall, who had been held at Smithland since Oct. 4 in connection with an ambush murder of Eugene Brown of nearby, Salem, Ky., had been the object of a manhunt since his escape.

He was captured in a dense thicket which took the searchers three hours to penetrate. He was found by Sheriff Ralph Smith of Lexington county with a flashlight as he was trying to hide under a log. His car was found nearby about three hours earlier.

Although he gave up without resistance, officers reported he acted like a "mad dog" later.

Nearly 400 Dead In Nation by Flu, Complications

By United Press
Nearly 400 Americans have died of Asian flu and its complications, including an 18th victim at the Pennhurst School for Mentally Retarded Children near Philadelphia, a count showed today.

New York State reported 125 flu-caused deaths and Pennsylvania 70 to account for nearly half of the total across the country.

Elsewhere, Michigan had 32 deaths, California 31, Louisiana 21, Illinois 20, Ohio 14, Iowa 13, Utah and Wisconsin 11 each, Colorado 10, Hawaii 9, Kentucky 6, Connecticut 5, Indiana 4, New Jersey 3, and Arizona, Maine, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Washington and the District of Columbia 1 each.

11 Deaths by Asia Flu at Dixon State Hospital

Number of Cases Decline; Total of 20 Dead in Illinois

By United Press
Asian flu was blamed for an 11th death at the Dixon State Hospital for Retarded Children, but officials said the number of flu cases there is declining.

Dr. Otto L. Bettag, director of the Illinois Department of Public Welfare, said 672 inmates at the school had flu Saturday compared to 1,158 a week ago. He said the incidence of the disease at other state institutions also was declining.

A woman, 49, also died of the disease or its complications at Kankakee State Hospital, bringing the total in Illinois to at least 20.

More than 25 high school football games were postponed over the weekend because of the flu, and some teams kept their athletic schedules only by sending in reserves and inexperienced players.

Meanwhile, Dr. Frederick Plotke, health director of the Welfare Department, planned to attend a U. S. Public Health Service meeting at the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga. He is to confer with other officials Wednesday on the department's results in combating the disease.

Laboratory research indicates some deaths in the Asian flu epidemic are due to the flu rather than its complications, such as pneumonia.

Southern Illinois University students trooped back to classes today after school officials suspended class meetings Friday and Saturday to prevent spreading flu during a teachers' institute that was meeting on campus.

Buford May Seek Nickell Post

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP)—A former president of the National Education Assn. said today he is considering running for nomination as Republican candidate for state superintendent of public instruction.

J. Lester Buford, 59, of Mount Vernon, said his decision on whether to enter the race will depend upon two things—whether members of the profession want him to run and whether a majority of what he calls "Republican powers" will endorse him.

Buford said he had received several inquiries from men "high in Republican politics" as to whether he would run, but he said Gov. Stratton was not among them. He said his answer had been no until Superintendent Vernon Nickell announced he would not run again.

Buford, in his 21st year as superintendent of Mount Vernon schools, said he would not enter a "knock down, drag out" race for the nomination, but would run if he thought 50 per cent or more of the party organization was behind him.

Faces Possible Kidnap Charges

Prison Fugitive Ends Crime Spree After Telephone Call to His Mother

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP)—A young Montana State Prison fugitive faced possible kidnap and assault charges today for abducting and raping a young housewife before a long-distance telephone call to his mother induced him to end a 24-hour crime spree.

The convict, Willard Arthur Brown, 23, also abducted two young Canadian men and held an elderly man and three children as hostages in a farmhouse before his mother in Jamestown, N. Y., talked him out of a vow that he never would be taken alive.

Authorities said Brown escaped Saturday night from the prison at Deer Lodge, Mont., where he was serving a four-year sentence for burglary.

J. Paul Getty Richest

76 Americans Have Fortunes of More Than 75 Million Dollars Each

NEW YORK (AP)—Seventy-six Americans have fortunes estimated at more than 75 million dollars each and the richest of them all is J. Paul Getty, Fortune magazine said today.

Getty, formerly of California and now living in Paris, is "the richest man in America" with wealth believed to be between 700 million dollars and one billion dollars, the magazine said. Getty made his millions in the oil business, including interest in Tidewater Oil Co.

"Oil is the greatest single source of American wealth," Fortune said. Forty-five per cent of those on the richest list "made their money on their own," the magazine said. And the number of multi-millionaires is increasing, it added.

Right behind Getty—in the 400-million-dollar to 700-million-dollar class—are Mrs. Mellon Bruce (Ailsa Mellon), of New York; Arthur Vining Davis, of Miami; H. L. Hunt, of Dallas; Paul Mellon, of Upperville, Va.; Richard King Mellon, of Pittsburgh; John D. Rockefeller Jr., of New York, and Mrs. Alan M. Scaife (Sarah Mellon), of Pittsburgh.

Most of the very rich consider themselves quite careful with money, a magazine survey said. A small number live on a budget. About half have only one house or apartment. The cost of running the home varies from $6,000 a year to $75,000, Fortune said.

The temperature first dropped below freezing—to 31—about two weeks ago.

Pro-West Party Returned to Power in Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Turkish voters returned Premier Adnan Menderes' ruling Democratic party to power today but sharply slashed its majority in parliament.

The Socialist-minded Republican People's Party cried foul and declared itself "moral victor." But a government spokesman said it was a triumph vindication of Menderes' pro-Western policies abroad and private enterprise system of government at home.

There were no signs in Turkey of an impending attack on Syria which the Soviet Union had said would come "immediately after" Sunday's election.

Results of the election showed the Democrats won 398 of the 610 seats in parliament—65 per cent. The Republican People's Party got 204. The Republican National Party and the Freedom Party each won four.

Parliament was expected to re-elect Celal Bayar as president for the next four years and Bayar was expected to re-appoint Menderes as premier.

Menderes is a staunch anti-Communist and a strong supporter of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, of which Turkey is a member.

No Official Word From Moscow On His Future

Khrushchev Emerging As Undisputed Master Of the Soviet Union

LONDON (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev was emerging today as undisputed master of the Soviet Union regardless of the future of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov.

There still was no official announcement from Moscow on the future of Zhukov, who was "relieved" of his post as minister of defense. But the feeling was growing he had been downgraded.

Diplomatic sources in London also said they expected further shakeups in the Soviet leadership, probably before the Nov. 7 celebration of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Communist newspapers which praised Zhukov Saturday and predicted great things for him did an abrupt about face today and said the possibility of a major promotion appears to be totally discarded.

The well-informed West German (non-Communist) newspaper B. Z. said flatly Zhukov had been fired because he warned Khrushchev against his anti-American policy. It said a number of Zhukov's close army friends also were fired.

Despite Moscow's silence—the Communist organ Pravda failed even to mention Zhukov today—diplomatic sources in London believed Khrushchev was finally on top almost on the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The well-informed Times of London summed up the situation in an editorial today when it said:

"In whatever post (if any) Marshal Zhukov finds himself it seems it has been made deliberately clear it is with Khrushchev alone that power at the present resides."

The Manchester Guardian's Soviet expert Victor Zorza pointed out that if Marshal Zhukov became premier or even president, "the separation of Zhukov from the armed forces which such a 'promotion' would imply would deprive him of his hold on one of the most effective levers of power. A Soviet expert in Washington said:

"Look at it this way. The Soviet people are suddenly told their respected hero is out of a job. No other job is mentioned for him. It's bound to look worse as time passes and he isn't given a new post."

"The Kremlin leaders may be feeling their way to see if popular sentiment will permit downgrading Zhukov."

Informed sources in Moscow said it would be extremely difficult to hold a meeting of the 132-man Central Committee of the Communist Party on such short notice and that it was more likely the case would be brought up in the 15-man party Presidium of which Zhukov is a member. All the members are believed to be in Moscow now.

Interest instead centered on the forthcoming massive celebrations for the 40th anniversary of the October revolution Nov. 7, and the meeting the day before of the Supreme (parliament) of the Soviet Union.

The Missile Race

EDITORIAL BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

From the outset the really alarming aspect of Russia's success in launching a satellite has been what this seemed to signify regarding Soviet progress in long range missiles. But a great deal of confusion now surrounds that whole matter.

To begin with, many people, including some who should know better, are referring to both intermediate and long range missiles as "intercontinental." The intermediate, with a range from 700 to perhaps 2,000 miles, is not properly classed as intercontinental.
Only the long range, with a maximum distance up to 5,000 miles, belongs in that category.

The Russians claim, of course, that they have fired a true intercontinental missile into a target area. We were skeptical of this at the time, and despite the successful dispatch of "Sputnik" by rocket propulsion, some of our scientists still are doubtful.

They know that the Russians needed a very powerful missile to catapult "Sputnik" 560 miles into the sky, for it weighs 184 pounds and the satellite we are building weighs a mere 21.

Nevertheless, the ability to lift a missile high into space is not the whole story. As the eminent scientist, Dr. Vannevar Bush, notes, there are two other major problems: getting the missile back into the earth's atmosphere without burning it to a crisp, and putting it on the target.

We have only the Russians' word that they have solved these difficulties. "Sputnik" does not prove it. As we all know, parts of the three-stage rocket which launched the satellite are still traveling in outer space along the satellite's orbit.

Admittedly, a good many leaders and millions of ordinary folk everywhere are more disposed than before to believe what the Soviet Union claims. That is the fruit of the Kremlin's great propaganda victory in launching a satellite ahead of us.

And, naturally in the light of recent events, we do not dare sit smugly by and content ourselves with the possibility the Russians have not solved all the problems of the long range missile—even though Bush and others think they have not.

The only safe course for the United States at this moment is to plunge ahead at full speed and with full resources to win the missile race, if that is still possible, or to catch up if we now trail. No American needs to be told any longer what is at stake.

"I'm Not Cool to the Idea Any More"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Drew Pearson says: economy blocks weather bureau's research of hurricanes; Air Force is so pinched it can't fly for weather bureau any more; Ike favored business leaders, Nixon minority leaders in entertaining queen.

WASHINGTON.—Weather bureau officials are burnt up about it, and the people of Texas, Louisiana, Florida and the coast are going to be even more burnt up when they hear the details about it. But Eisenhower economy will soon end
Air Force research into the cause and whereabouts of hurricanes.

The two B-50's and one B-47, loaded with electronics equipment,
which the Air Force has been flying for the weather bureau into the path of hurricanes, will stop operating in about a month. The $500,000 worth of special scientific equipment will be taken out and the planes will return to other duty.

The Air Force has notified the weather bureau that under the rigid economy program it is pinching every penny and just can't afford to operate these three planes any more.

The weather bureau has argued that in the last four years hurricane have taken a toll of 1,000 lives and destroyed two billion dollars worth of property. Furthermore, the weather bureau is experimenting with means for breaking up hurricanes to divert them away from populated areas. This experiment, they point out, is even more important than launching a Sputnik.

To finish its research, the weather bureau needs to fly through 24 to 36 hurricanes with the intricate equipment now assembled in the three Air Force planes. So far they've flown through only eight—this in one year of operation.

The weather bureau's budget was cut $2,000,000 last year, which forced the firing of 100 employees.
This did not affect the hurricane project, because the Air Force budget has been cut. The weather bureau has promised to try to get an extra $750,000 included in the Commerce Department's Deficiency Budget, but the Air Force, worried over its own forced economies, is skeptical.

So a research project which could be more beneficial to mankind than Sputnik—diverting hurricanes away from populated areas —is scheduled to come to a halt.

PLANS FOR FOOTBALL
Down in Little Rock, Governor
Faubus had enough Air Force money to operate two National Guard planes to the Texas-Oklahoma game the other day. He sent his executive assistant, Tom Russell, and other Arkansas officers in two planes on a special private hop to see the football game.

The Arkansas officers complained that they were now "subjects," referring to the fact that the National Guard had been federalized.
However, this did not seem to prevent them from using two federalized planes for which the Air Force supplies the money.

A total of 180 private aircraft operated chiefly by oil tycoons, landed in Dallas to see the Texas-Oklahoma game. Since Texas is a hard-hit hurricane-tornado area, maybe some of them would like to fly the weather bureau's instruments through the hurricanes.

NIXON'S POLITICAL MOVES
The public doesn't notice it, but young Dick Nixon seldom misses a political trick. GOP politicians do notice it, however, with grudging admiration. They noted that he even cashed in politically on the luncheon he gave to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

When President Eisenhower entertained the Queen he went in for big business executives who don't swing too many votes. They did, of course, contribute generously to Ike's campaign fund.

His guests included Walter Hoving, president of the Bonwit-Teller Department Store, contribu-

$500; Sigurd Larmon, president of Young and Rubicam Advertising Agency, contribution $1,500; Barry T. Leithead, president of the Cluett Peabody Shirt Company, contribution $3,000; Bob Woodruff, head of Coca-Cola, who with his wife contributed $8,450.

There was also Ellis Slater of Seagram's Whiskey, contribution
$2,500. His company got the valuable oil concession in the Lacas-sine Game Reserve where no oil drilling had ever been permitted by the Democrats. Also present was Mrs. Floyd Odum, the former Jackie Cochran, who kicked in the nice little amount of $20,500 to the Ike campaign fund. Mrs.
Odum's husband, who is head of the Atlas Corporation and North east Airlines, recently received a juicy air license to operate to Miami despite a CAB examiner's recommendation to the contrary.

Also at the dinner was Ike's brother-in-law, Col. Gordon Moore, who has conducted a very thriving lobbying business in Washington and who in Truman's day would have been called a five-percenter.
Another dinner guest was George E. Allen, who in Truman's day was called the "White House Jester" but was recently described by the Associated Press as the president's "occasional" golfing partner. Actually Allen purchased this Gettysburg farm for him and was a partner with him in the ownership of a Howard Johnson restaurant. He is one of Ike's most frequent bridge and golfing partners.

Nixon, however, played his cards differently. To his luncheon for the Queen on Capitol Hill he invited David McDonald, president of the United Steel Workers, and Claude A. Barnett, director of the Associated Negro Press, together with their wives. Eisenhower invited no labor leaders or representatives of minority groups; Nixon invited no big business moguls.

Coal first replaced charcoal as a blast furnace fuel in steel production shortly before the end of the 19th century. Today steel production calls for more than 100,000 900 tons of coal a year.

Matter of FACT

Contrary to popular thinking, Westminster Abbey has not always been a great church where English kings are crowned and the famous dead are buried. The abbey was probably begun during the eighth century as a home for Benedictine monks, who lived a simple life there compared to the pomp and ceremony connected with present-day coronations in the abbey.
A new church at Westminster was begun about 1050 by Edward the Confessor, and every British monarch from William the Conqueror to Elizabeth the Second was crowned there, except Edward the Fifth, who was slain in the Tower of London as a boy.

Illinois Christmas Tree Growers Begin to Show Effect on Markets

By SAM HANCOCK

UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT

BENTON, Ill. — Illinois
Christmas tree growers are beginning to flex their muscles with noticeable effect in the battle for the markets.

Martin Anderson, a state forest er here, says he's getting more inquiries from farmers each year about tree-growing, and more than half of them concern Christmas trees.

"Right now, the market is bigger than the supply down here," said Anderson whose district embraces 12 southern Illinois counties.

He estimates that 15 new Chris-mas tree plantations were started in his district alone this spring when 150,000 seedlings were planted. Earlier plantations were wiped out by dry years in 1932 and 1933 and the farmers had to start all over.

Farmers in his district found
St. Louis and Chicago markets last Christmas and expect to repeat this year when they will ship more than 3,000 trees.

Most of the trees are Scotch pine, but white, red and jack pines and Douglas fir and spruce have some representation.

Anderson said 25 per cent of the Christmas trees used in Illinois last year were grown in the state.
The Illinois Christmas Tree Growers Assn., formed last year, hopes to increase that percentage.

"I think Illinois has a tremendous future in the Christmas tree growing business in the next five to ten years," Anderson said.

Illinois now gets most of its trees from Canada and the northwest and northeast sections of the United States.

Anderson sees a great potential market for Illinois trees in states to the south because of the difficulty in growing northern pines there.

Christmas trees find a happy home on hill, and poor land which would not produce rich crop yields.

And at the same time they bring revenue to the farmers, they check soil erosion from rain and wind.

Preserve Beauty of Knits with Suds

Your autumn knits take readily to soap-and-water with the right handling. Washable orlon knit tweed (left) can be washed at night, worn again the next morning. If it's placed on a contour hanger, it will dry without a shoulder ridge. Buttoning the front lines the dress up so that no pressing is needed. Newest way to dry sweaters (center) is with canvas jiffy dryer that permits air to circulate through garment so that both sides dry at once. Drying takes half the time this way. All-wool knit suit (right) has horizontally-ribbed jacket and vertically ribbed skirt with knitted-in pleats. And it's washable. Paper clips will keep the pleats in place during the drying process and make them neat and smooth.

Your Garden

Following These Suggestions Will Help Indoor Gardening

By HENRY FREE

With work in your outdoor garden limited to cleaning up the beds as the remaining annuals, chrysanthemums and roses fade, the care of the indoor plants assumes real importance. Given common-sense care—and reasonable sunlight—house plants will thrive and bloom for the earnest gardener.

Not all homes lend themselves to good growing conditions. One must choose plants for the place in which they are to grow, keeping in mind their ability for the purpose and general conditions.

Where sunlight is nil, the indoor gardener cannot expect blooms and therefore must select those foliage plants which tolerate shade and artificial light. The list of such plants, while not long, includes foliage, such as the new varieties of philodendron and sansevieria.

For the sunny windows, the indoor gardener will receive ample reward from African violets, fibrous begonias, azaleas, Christmas cactus, gardenias and camellias. The last two are sturdy, upright plants and in bloom from November onward. But how the mealy bugs thrive on them unless the foliage is sprayed with tepid water every three or four days.

Once each fortnight spray these and all other flowering plants with a Black Leaf 40 soapy water solution. And be sure to include the African violets despite the advice of never wetting their foliage.

The Old Gardener believes that indoor gardening can be successful by observing the following:

- 1—Dry atmosphere must be counteracted by any practical means: glazed or painted clay pots always with drainage holes, water pans on radiators, pans of gravel holding water beneath pots, daily spraying with a fine mist.
- 2—Regular watering, its frequency and amount determined by watching the plants.
- 3—Weekly spraying or wiping the clean of foliage to control insects and diseases.

SPRAYING indoor plants during winter months is a must to keep your greenery safe from destructive bugs. Use tepid water. Wiping foliage occasionally helps bug control, too.

4—Plenty of light for foliage plants, sunlight for flowering ones.
5—Circulation of air, a temperature not below 50 degrees nor over 70.

6—Fertilizing not oftener than once a month. Tablets and liquid fertilizers are accepted ration; liquid manure gives wonderful results. A little judgment is necessary in using, as too much fertilizer might be disastrous. Follow maker's directions when mixing.

7—Repotting only once a year, then only if a plant's growth warrants it and to pot no more than one size larger. Two parts of garden loam to one part of humus, leaf mold or peat moss and one of sharp sand is general soil mixture.

The complete name of the village of Santa Cruz, N. M., is: La Villa Nueva de Santa Cruz de los Espanoles Mejanos del Rey Nuestro Senor Carlos Segundo (The New City of the Spanish Mexicans of Our King Charles the Second).

Matter of FACT

The first coins made in the United States, after the establishment of the United States mint at Philadelphia in 1792, were silver half dimes (later spelled dimes). According to old mint tradition these coins were made from George Washington's table silver, brought to the mint from his quarters just two doors away. They were struck on a hand-operated screw press.

Disclose Cruise Under Arctic Ice By Sub Nautilus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The atomic-powered submarine Nautilus recently traveled more than 1,000 miles under the Arctic ice pack in five and one-half days in an eerie underwater cruise to obtain scientific data.

Navy Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. disclosed the cruise Sunday on his arrival on the West Coast to speak to Republican money-raising groups.

"The Nautilus has scored another first," Gates said.

"Just recently, she has completed an Arctic cruise to enable scientific and operational personnel to obtain data on under-ice conditions, oceanographic studies of currents and cold weather operations of equipment and machinery."

"The Nautilus spent a total of five and one-half days under the Arctic ice pack, traveling over a thousand miles while gathering these scientific data."

Gates said the sub entered the Arctic from the Atlantic Ocean, but gave no further details.

Gates said the Nautilus' feat in the Arctic shows that the submarine will displace the depth charge as the anti-submarine weapon.

"We are producing better depth charges," Gates said. "We tested an atomic one a few days ago. But increased speeds and sonar equipment, such as that carried by the Nautilus, means that it will be sub against sub."

Rites Held Sunday For Ernie Dixon, 65, Former Simpson Resident

Ernie Dixon, 65, a retired railroad worker and former resident of Simpson, died in the hospital at Geneva, at 9 a. m. Friday. He was a resident of Batavia at the time of his death and had been taken to the hospital with a heart attack a few hours before he died. The body was received by the Thornton funeral home at Carrier Mills at 2:30 p. m. Saturday and the funeral was held in the Baptist church in Simpson at 1:30 p. m. Sunday. Rev. Ernest Ammon officiated and burial was in the Kerley cemetery.

Mr. Dixon is survived by his wife, two sons, and three grandchildren.

In 1803, after the United States had purchased the Louisiana territory from France for $15,000,000, President Thomas Jefferson chose two men to explore the vast region. Meriwether Lewis and Captain William Clark. More than 20 men were members of their expedition, which lasted two years and four months and covered 8,000 miles. The expedition was conducted on a congressional appropriation of only $2,500.

U. S. Steps Up Progress Reports On Its Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States stepped up its barrage of progress reports on missiles today.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, reported that early work on a Nike Zeus rocket designed to intercept and destroy continent-spanning ballistic missiles has been "crowned with success" so far.

His statement came on the heels of a disclosure by the Navy that it soon will fire a "Polaris" intermediate range ballistic missile from an atomic submarine deep in the sea.

An Air Force announcement that its bomber-launched "Rascal" missile has been tested successfully in an air-to-ground test against a long-distance target.

Gromyko Urges Broader Group On Disarmament

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union called on the United Nations today to junk its Disarmament Commission and five-power subcommittee and create a new and larger disarmament group composed of all 82 U. N. members.

The proposal, made in a letter from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and broadcast today by Radio Moscow, termed the 12-power commission and its subcommittee "too narrow a circle of states."

Gromyko called for "fresh efforts" to solve the disarmament problems.

This indicated the Soviet Union favored scrapping the five months of disarmament discussions it held with Britain, France, Canada and the United States in London this year and beginning anew and tossing out any Western proposals.

Gromyko also suggested that future disarmament talks be conducted in public. This year's subcommittee talks were secret with transcripts released after they were over.

The Soviet proposal appeared to set back any hopes of reaching any disarmament agreement the Russians would adhere to during the current session of the U. N. General Assembly.

AFL-CIO Plans Campaign for Public Relations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AFL-CIO will launch a $1,200,000 public relations campaign next year to restore organized labor's reputation, a spokesman for the federation announced today.

A key objective of the campaign would be to head off threatened anti-labor legislation in Congress and in state legislatures.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council, in authorizing the $100,000-a-month campaign, left details to a nine-man committee headed by William C. Birnbaum, president of the Barber's Union.

Disclosures by the Senate Rackets Committee of corruption in some unions have damaged labor's general standing with the public and congress, labor leaders fear.

The council's action last week in suspending the scandal-ridden Teamsters Union and threatening ouster of the Bakery Workers and United Textile Workers would be publicized in the campaign. The three unions were told to eliminate officials charged with corruption or leave the AFL-CIO.

The money would be spent largely on radio and television time, newspaper advertisements and possibly films to tell the federation's story, the spokesman said.

Brief Funeral Services for Gangster Boss

NEW YORK (AP)—Albert Anastasia, former guiding hand of Brooklyn's Murder Inc., was buried today without the rites of the Roman Catholic Church in which his brother is a priest.

Brief services were held in a Brooklyn funeral parlor. The 55-year-old gangster, who bossed the underworld's "enforcement squad" and is said to have slain at least 63 persons in the 1930s, was buried in non-denominational Greenwood Cemetery.

Anastasia was shot to death Friday in a Manhattan hotel barbershop. He had beat four murder indictments, a "perfect case" against him and one sentence to the electric chair.

Among the mourners was his most prominent brother, Anthony (Tough Tony) Anastasia, boss of the Brooklyn waterfront whose rackets the dead Albert was said to have controlled from his New Jersey mansion.

Longshoremen in work clothes and two top officials of the independent International Longshoremen's Assn., President William A. Bradley and chief organizer Thomas Gleason, were among those who paid their respects to the dead gangster before the services.

Plan National Shrine Over Sunken Battleship Arizona

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Marvin R. Dee, Chicago, national commander of the Navy Club, today announced plans for erection of a permanent national shrine around and over the sunken battleship U. S. S. Arizona off Ford Island at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

The Arizona shrine will be one of the program, the Pacific War Memorial Commission and will cost about $500,000, Dee said.

The money will be raised by public subscription, starting with a kickoff dinner in Hawaii on Dec. 7, the anniversary of the 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor.

The Navy Club will lead the campaign drive. The shrine will include an enclosed observation bridge across the bulk of the sunken ship and a causeway to the Ford Island beach.

Two Priests Among Four Killed in Light Plane Crash

LOWELL, Ind. (AP)—A snow and sleet storm was blamed today for a light plane crash which killed four men, including two Roman Catholic priests, Saturday night. The plane was returning from the Notre Dame Pittsburgh football game in South Bend.

The dead, all from Rockford, Ill., were the Rev. Donald Schuler, 29, vice chancellor of the Rockford diocese and secretary to Bishop Loras Lane; the Rev. Francis McNally, pastor of the St. Patrick's Church; George Arvindson, 35, and Walter Stone, both salesmen.

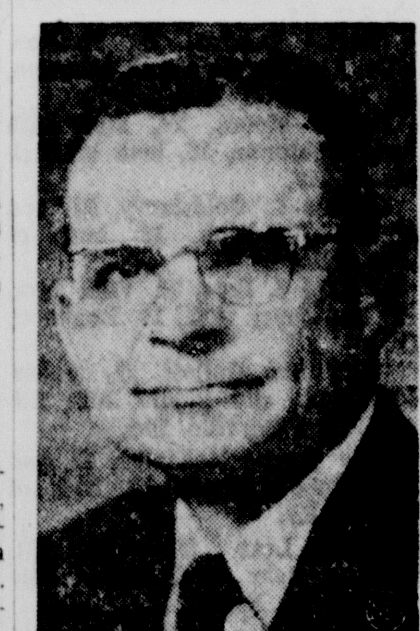

State police said Stone was piloting the twin-engine plane, a new Beechcraft Bonanza, when it crashed in a field on the Myron Kenny farm three miles west of here.

Navy Studying Penguins

MOORESTOWN, N. J. (AP)—The U. S. Navy is seriously trying to find out how a lady penguin keeps her eggs warm, the deputy chief of naval research told a men's club here Sunday. Capt. A. B. Metzger said Naval research believes the answer may give a clue to protecting men and high altitude birds which live on "little if any water" in order to learn more about how men stranded on life rafts can survive, he said.

Forty-Niners' President Fatally Stricken; Team Edges Bears, 21-17

By United Press
The San Francisco Forty-Niners, shocked by the death of their president during another of their narrow victories, and the Cleveland Browns took undisputed division leads Sunday in what promises to be the wildest races in National Football League history.

Anthony J. (Tony) Morabito, advised to "get out of football" after he had a heart attack several years ago, suffered another in the second quarter at San Francisco. He was dead when his Forty-Niners wiped out a 17-7 halftime deficit and edged the Chicago Bears, 21-17. The Bears were five-point favorites.

The Forty-Niners started the day tied with the Baltimore Colts and Detroit Lions for the Western Division lead. Los Angeles Rams whipped Detroit, 35-17, and the Green Bay Packers upset Baltimore, 24-21, on Babe Parilli's 75-yard scoring pass to Bill Howton in the last 29 seconds.

Those results left San Francisco alone at the top but Coach Frankie Albert couldn't enjoy the third victory.

Veteran Auto Racer Killed on Concord Speedway
CONCORD, N. C. — A 31-year-old Richmond, Va., truck driver and veteran auto racer was killed Sunday when his car tumbled down a 15-foot embankment while making a turn on the Concord Speedway.

The crash in which Earl Bryant was killed instantly, came on the eighth lap of the U. S. Modified Championship and Lee Kirby Memorial Race. Bryant was making a turn with several other cars and left the race track on the outside, crashing down the embankment and into an eight-inch pine tree.

The race was the fifth annual running of the 100-mile event. The accident was the first fatal one since the track opened in 1946.

Banjo Matthews of Asheville, N. C., won the 200-lap event, clocking 53.5 miles per hour. Fireball Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., the 1955 winner, was second and Earl Moss of Creedmoore, N. C., was third.

Braves Fire Three Coaches

MILWAUKEE — Bullpen Coach Bob Keely today was the only survivor of a wholesale shakeup in the coaching staff of the world champion Milwaukee Braves that saw three of Manager Fred Haney's aides fired.

The Braves' front office discharged Pitching Coach Charlie Root, Third Base Coach Connie Ryan and First Base Coach John Riddle in a surprise move late Saturday.

Former major league hurler Whitlow Wyatt of the Philadelphia Phillies' staff was immediately named the new pitching coach. John Fitzpatrick, a coach at Hollywood in 1957 and a long-time friend of Haney's, got Riddle's job.

The Braves said a third base boss will be hired later. Candidates rumored for the post were Ben Geraghy and Sibby Sisti of the Milwaukee minor league organization. Coach Eddie Stanky of the Cleveland Indians and Charlie Dressen, who resigned Friday as assistant to President Calvin Griffith of the Washington Senators.

Ryan's dismissal had been predicted because of reported rifts with Haney and Root was said to have been considering retirement when the Braves dropped their axe. Riddle's dismissal was unexpected.

Unbeaten Iowa, Texas A&M, Notre Dame Face Tough, 1-Loss Opponents This Week

By United Press
Four of the nation's six remaining unbeaten and untied major powers will face tough, once-beaten opponents next Saturday when the final push for lucrative bowl bids begins in earnest.

Oklahoma, its national crown drooping a bit, the port side after Saturday's 14-13 squeaker with Colorado, should have relatively easy pickings with Kansas State (2-3-1) and Auburn, 48-7 victor over Houston Saturday night, will be a solid choice over Florida.

But the other four — second-ranked Iowa, third-ranked Texas A&M, fifth-ranked Notre Dame and unbeaten and untied Dartmouth — could easily be knocked out of the elite group. In Texas A&M's case, a defeat could mean no telephone call from the Cotton Bowl committee.

Iowa Wins In Rain
Iowa, which beat Northwestern, 6-0, on a rain-and-snow soaked field thanks to a fluke play, goes against Michigan, which is 4-1 overall and walloped Minnesota, 24-7, on Saturday. Ohio State, Big Ten co-leader and the league's likely Rose Bowl nominee, takes

Shotgun Season For Deer Will Open On Friday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Illinois' first shotgun deer season in history will be opened Friday and will last exactly three days, the state Department of Conservation today reminded resident hunters who have received permits for the season.

Director Glen D. Palmer issued the following warnings: Hunters must have a permit for a specific county.

Hunters must have permission of the landowner to hunt. Hunters must wear red or yellow clothing for their own protection (solid color not advised; bright cap and vest recommended).

Successful hunters must bring their deer to the official check station in each county. Location of said check stations was included with each permit.

The director emphasized that only shotguns and rifled slugs may be used during this deer season. Palmer noticed that a news story last week carried the erroneous statement that Illinois would have a rifle season.

"Rifled slug is the type of shotgun shell which is acceptable under the Illinois deer law," he declared. "Anyone found hunting with a rifle will be arrested and given the maximum penalty. Shotguns are dangerous enough in our limited big game country without the additional danger of high powered rifles."

The bow and arrow season was closed last week at Horseshoe Lake refuge where Leo Beasley of Miller City got a 16-point buck weighing 272 pounds a week ago Sunday. The deer was judged to be 4 1/2 years old, and was one of the largest seen in Illinois.

Another interesting phase of this successful deer hunt story is the fact that Beasley purchased a bow and arrows the Saturday before opening of the deer season. He practiced faithfully until satisfied he was ready for a hunt. His bow had a 48-pound pull and he used the bodkin type arrow. Beasley must have done a good job of training himself, for he not only bagged the largest deer on Horseshoe island, but he drove home four arrows, any one of which might have been enough to fell the animal.

XIX
It didn't make any difference how the Manhattan Homicide Squad, state, county and city of New York, was shifted around, split up, reorganized. When men spoke of the Inspector in the tone the lieutenant had used they meant one man. That man was Christopher McKee, formerly the head of the entire Manhattan Homicide Squad until it was subdivided.

The tall Scotsman had been out of New York when Grant Melville was killed. In his review of back work the report on the dead painter came across his desk. He read it idly at first, then with interest, plucked out the essentials, and sent for the first-grade detective, Brownell, who thought that the girl, Sarah Casement, might have had something.

Grant Melville's history had been rounded out. He had spent a month painting at a cottage he owned in Cornwall prior to his return to New York, and his death. The Scotsman had known Carney for some years, and they had worked together on a case up there. He called him.

McKee and Carney talked for some time. Half an hour later McKee was with Grant Melville's widow in the Melville house on Tenth St.

"It was that woman," she cried through her tears. "That nasty woman, that broomstick. . . She hated me, hated Grant because he married me. She was always trying to get him back, she never gave up. . ."

"That woman, that broomstick," was Grant Melville's first wife, the present Mrs. Satterlee. She couldn't bear that horrid little house up on the Cape, or those people—they were all Reds, they hated anyone who had money or lived decently, were sick with envy. . .

Yes, oh yes, the Satterlees were the worst, far the worst, they were always talking about social justice, on other people's cash. They'd sing a different tune if they had anything themselves. She had gone up there a couple of times when she was first married, and a couple of visits were more than enough. She told Grant then that if he wanted to paint there he would have to go by himself. . .

She had never previously seen any of the people who had answered her advertisement; she only remembered the man named Dennert because he claimed to have known Grant personally, and because he was so utterly impossible for such a charge. . . The man to whom she had entrusted it was charming, a Mr. Gillespie. . . He was a real author, he had written a splendid novel, had given her a copy. . . The title was "The Golden Spoon" and the author's name was Dawson Michaels.

"He is," Mrs. Melville said. "Mr. Gillespie is Dawson Michaels—it's a—what do you call it?" She fumbled with pseudonym, came up with pen name.

When McKee had dredged up what little else the widow actually had, he left her and mounted to the studio where men from Headquarters had preceded him, Daligan the photographer, and Finley from fingerprints.

Finley did get some prints off the trap door at the top of the stairs, through which the opportunistic thief had come and gone empty-handed on the night of the day Melville was killed. The studio itself bore out the story the Casement girl had told. The canvas was still on the easel. It was a half-finished landscape.

McKee picked it up and carried it to the window. The paint on it, half an inch thick in places, was hard and bone dry. Grant Melville had been dead a little more than four weeks—the canvas he held hadn't been touched for at least six months. Pigment that thick took a long while to dry out. This was not the canvas Melville had been working on just before his death.

Back at the office he studied the material that had come in. Dennert first. Joseph Dennert had lived in a shabby down-at-heels one-room apartment on East Eighth St. for a little over a year. The rent, $48 a month, had been paid promptly, in cash. None of the other tenants or the janitor knew much about him, where he had come from, where he worked, or for whom.

Crystabel Dolwin next. When she was in New York Miss Dolwin stayed at the Canton, a modest hotel in the West 90s, but there were long gaps. The vivacious and verbose lady was a sculptress. . .

Among other things, Thomas Gillespie was a liar and a bold one. McKee had the publisher of "The Golden Spoon" checked. Dawson Michaels was a pseudonym used by a prolific author who turned out books fast, and whose real name was Jansen Biggs. Mr. Biggs was currently traveling in Europe. While Leahy, the detective on Gillespie, was in the Parliament a lady had called. She seemed very anxious to get in touch with Mr. Gillespie, and she left a number at which he was to call her as soon as he came in. The number was REgent 3-01687, the unlisted number of Channing Hall.

The Scotsman's brows rose. Channing Hall, banker and economist, was a public figure and had been for many years. He had both inherited money and made it, so he could afford to be independent. He was in the political scene but not of it, a counselor of counselors, a man respected for his acumen and judgment, who was often consulted in national affairs.

Tell People Where We Stand, Billy Graham Asks Ike

NEW YORK — Evangelist Billy Graham called on President Eisenhower Sunday night to "tell the American people exactly where we stand" on the prospect of war.

"I was told last week on good authority that there is a strong element within the Kremlin that believes that Russia should attack the United States within the next two years," he said in a sermon at the wind-up rally of his New York crusade.

Graham spoke at the Polo Grounds. He warned that war "seems more possible now than at any other time in the last 10 years."

"It would be most unfortunate if the President in his forthcoming speeches should say anything that would give the American people a false sense of security," he said. "He should go on television and tell the American people exactly where we stand. He should call on us to tighten our belts and to make any sacrifices necessary to meet the challenge of world communism."

It depends largely on how well you manage money—but, you might bear this in mind: two out of three owners of common stock have incomes under $7500 a year.

Perhaps you, too, should consider investing in common stock. It's easy to get basic facts. Just drop by our office and have a chat with one of our experienced representatives. And ask for our new booklet, "Dividends Over the Years, A Basic Guide for Common Stock Investment," which includes a list of more than 300 common stocks that have paid cash dividends every year for 25 years or more.

The booklet is free — and we believe it will help you learn how you may receive extra income by investing in common stock.

Prisoner Who Fled Jail in Kentucky Is Captured

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP)—Tilford Lee Marshall, 48, who escaped from the Lexington county jail at Smithland, Ky., Oct. 21, was arrested early today in Kentucky about a quarter mile from the Elizabethtown, Ill., ferry landing.

Marshall, who had been held at Smithland since Oct. 4 in connection with an ambush murder of Eugene Brown of nearby, Salem, Ky., had been the object of a manhunt since his escape.

He was captured in a dense thicket which took the searchers three hours to penetrate. He was found by Sheriff Ralph Smith of Lexington county with a flashlight as he was trying to hide under a log. His car was found nearby about three hours earlier.

Although he gave up without resistance, officers reported he acted like a "mad dog" later.

Nearly 400 Americans have died of Asian flu and its complications, including an 18th victim at the Pennhurst School for Mentally Retarded Children near Philadelphia, a count showed today.

11 Deaths by Asia Flu at Dixon State Hospital

Number of Cases Decline; Total of 20 Dead in Illinois

By United Press

Asian flu was blamed for an 11th death at the Dixon State Hospital for Retarded Children, but officials said the number of flu cases there is declining.

Dr. Otto L. Bettag, director of the Illinois Department of Public Welfare, said 672 inmates at the school had flu Saturday compared to 1,158 a week ago. He said the incidence of the disease at other state institutions also was declining.

A woman, 49, also died of the disease or its complications at Kankakee State Hospital, bringing the total in Illinois to at least 20.

More than 25 high school football games were postponed over the weekend because of the flu, and some teams kept their athletic schedules only by sending in reserves and inexperienced players.

Meanwhile, Dr. Frederick Plotke, health director of the Welfare Department, planned to attend a U. S. Public Health Service meeting at the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga. He is to confer with other officials Wednesday on the department's results in combating the disease.

Laboratory research indicates some deaths in the Asian flu epidemic are due to the flu rather than its complications, such as pneumonia.

Southern Illinois University students trooped back to classes today after school officials suspended class meetings Friday and Saturday to prevent spreading flu during a teachers' institute that was meeting on campus.

Buford May Seek Nickell Post

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP)—A former president of the National Education Assn. said today he is considering running for nomination as Republican candidate for state superintendent of public instruction.

J. Lester Buford, 59, of Mount Vernon, said his decision on whether to enter the race will depend upon two things—whether members of the profession want him to run and whether a majority of what he calls "Republican powers" will endorse him.

Buford said he had received several inquiries from men "high in Republican politics" as to whether he would run, but he said Gov. Stratton was not among them. He said his answer had been no until Superintendent Vernon Nickell announced he would not run again.

Buford, in his 21st year as superintendent of Mount Vernon schools, said he would not enter a "knock down, drag out" race for the nomination, but would run if he thought 50 per cent or more of the party organization was behind him.

Faces Possible Kidnap Charges

Prison Fugitive Ends Crime Spree After Telephone Call to His Mother

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP)—A young Montana State Prison fugitive faced possible kidnap and assault charges today for abducting and raping a young housewife before a long-distance telephone call to his mother induced him to end a 24-hour crime spree.

The convict, Willard Arthur Brown, 23, also abducted two young Canadian men and held an elderly man and three children as hostages in a farmhouse before his mother in Jamestown, N. Y., talked him out of a vow that he never would be taken alive.

Authorities said Brown escaped Saturday night from the prison at Deer Lodge, Mont., where he was serving a four-year sentence for burglary.

J. Paul Getty Richest

76 Americans Have Fortunes of More Than 75 Million Dollars Each

NEW YORK (AP)—Seventy-six Americans have fortunes estimated at more than 75 million dollars each and the richest of them all is J. Paul Getty, Fortune magazine said today.

Getty, formerly of California and now living in Paris, is "the richest man in America" with wealth believed to be between 700 million dollars and one billion dollars, the magazine said. Getty made his millions in the oil business, including interest in Tidewater Oil Co.

"Oil is the greatest single source of American wealth," Fortune said. Forty-five per cent of those on the richest list "made their money on their own," the magazine said. And the number of multi-millionaires is increasing, it added. Right behind Getty—in the 400-million-dollar to 700-million-dollar class—are Mrs. Mellon Bruce (Ailsa Mellon), of New York; Arthur Vining Davis, of Miami; H. L. Hunt, of Dallas; Paul Mellon, of Upperville, Va.; Richard King Mellon, of Pittsburgh; John D. Rockefeller Jr., of New York; and Mrs. Alan M. Scaife (Sarah Mellon), of Pittsburgh.

Most of the very rich consider themselves quite careful with money, a magazine survey said. A small number live on a budget. About half have only one house or apartment. The cost of running the home varies from $6,000 a year to $75,000, Fortune said.

Today was a beautiful autumn day but it was winter time during the early hours.

The temperature first dropped below freezing—to 31—about two weeks ago.

Pro-West Party Returned to Power in Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Turkish voters returned Premier Adnan Menderes' ruling Democratic party to power today but sharply slashed its majority in parliament.

The Socialist-minded Republican People's Party cried foul and declared itself "moral victor." But a government spokesman said it was a triumph vindication of Menderes' pro-Western policies abroad and private enterprise system of government at home.

There were no signs in Turkey of an impending attack on Syria which the Soviet Union had said would come "immediately after" Sunday's election.

Results of the election showed the Democrats won 398 of the 610 seats in parliament—65 per cent. The Republican People's Party got 204. The Republican National Party and the Freedom Party each won four.

Parliament was expected to reelect Celal Bayar as president for the next four years and Bayar was expected to reappoint Menderes as premier.

Menderes is a staunch anti-Communist and a strong supporter of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, of which Turkey is a member.

Norris City Man Critically Hurt In Car Smashup

Auto Overtakes On Route 45 in Another Accident

William T. Smith, 27, Norris City, was taken to Lightner hospital early Sunday following critical injuries received in a car smashup.

State Policemen Roy A. Lane and Everett Estes said the auto, in which Smith was riding alone, sideswiped a bridge on Route 13 east of Harrisburg about 1 a. m. Sunday.

They said the crash occurred at the bridge near the spot where the L and N railroad tracks cross Route 13 between Berry Hill and the Routes 13-142 intersection near Equality.

They said that Smith was driving west toward Harrisburg and that after sideswiping the bridge on the south side of the road, the car went into a ditch. The machine was a total wreck, the left side being sheared.

Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Smith of Norris City.

In another one-car accident, an auto owned by Charles Griffith of St. Louis and driven by Mildred Foote, also of St. Louis, left Route 45 a short distance northeast of the old Sahara 1 mine, site about 4:15 a. m. Sunday and overturned.

The auto was badly damaged but the two suffered only minor injuries, officers said.

Two truck drivers from Texas, Chuck West and Roy Keel, were the first to stop when they saw the directional signal lights flashing from the ditch. The woman had turned on these lights after getting out of the overturned machine.

No Official Word From Moscow On His Future

Khrushchev Emerging As Undisputed Master Of the Soviet Union

LONDON (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev was emerging today as undisputed master of the Soviet Union regardless of the future of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov.

There still was no official announcement from Moscow on the future of Zhukov, who was "relieved" of his post as minister of defense. But the feeling was growing he had been downgraded.

Diplomatic sources in London also said they expected further shakeups in the Soviet leadership, probably before the Nov. 7 celebration of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Communist newspapers which praised Zhukov Saturday and predicted great things for him did an abrupt about face today and said the possibility of a major promotion appears to be totally discarded.

The well-informed West German (non-Communist) newspaper B. Z. said flatly Zhukov had been fired because he warned Khrushchev against his anti-American policy. It said a number of Zhukov's close army friends also were fired.

Despite Moscow's silence—the Communist organ Pravda failed even to mention Zhukov today—diplomatic sources in London believed Khrushchev was finally on top almost on the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The well-informed Times of London summed up the situation in an editorial today when it said:

"In whatever post (if any) Marshal Zhukov finds himself it seems it has been made deliberately clear it is with Khrushchev alone that power at the present resides."

The Manchester Guardian's Soviet expert Victor Zorza pointed out that if Mar-hal Zhukov became premier or even president, "the separation of Zhukov from the armed forces which such a 'promotion' would imply would deprive him of his hold on one of the most effective levers of power. A Soviet expert in Washington said:

"Look at it this way. The Soviet people are suddenly told their respected hero is out of a job. No other job is mentioned for him. It's bound to look worse as time passes and he isn't given a new post."

"The Kremlin leaders may be feeling their way to see if popular sentiment will permit downgrading Zhukov."

Informed sources in Moscow said it would be extremely difficult to hold a meeting of the 132-man Central Committee of the Communist Party on such short notice and that it was more likely the case would be brought up in the 15-man party Presidium of which Zhukov is a member. All the members are believed to be in Moscow now.

Interest instead centered on the forthcoming massive celebrations for the 40th anniversary of the October revolution Nov. 7, and the meeting the day before of the Supreme (parliament) of the Soviet Union.

Following These Suggestions Will Help Indoor Gardening

By HENRY FREE

With work in your outdoor garden limited to cleaning up the beds as the remaining annuals, chrysanthemums and roses fade, the care of the indoor plants assumes real importance. Given common-sense care—and reasonable sunlight—house plants will thrive and bloom for the earnest gardener.

Not all homes lend themselves to good growing conditions. One must choose plants for the place in which they are to grow, keeping in mind their ability for the purpose and general conditions.

Where sunlight is nil, the indoor gardener cannot expect blooms and therefore must select those foliage plants which tolerate shade and artificial light. The list of such plants, while not long, includes philodendron and sansevieria.

For the sunny windows, the indoor gardener will receive ample reward from African violets, fibrous begonias, azaleas, Christmas cactus, gardenias and camellias. The last two are sturdy, upright plants and in bloom from November onward. But how the mealy bugs thrive on them unless the foliage is sprayed with tepid water every three or four days.

Once each fortnight spray these and all other flowering plants with a Black Leaf 40 soapy water solution. And be sure to include the African violets despite the advice of never wetting their foliage.

The Old Gardener believes that indoor gardening can be successful by observing the following:

1—Dry atmosphere must be counteracted by any practical means: glazed or painted clay pots always with drainage holes, water pans on radiators, pans of gravel holding water beneath pots, daily spraying with a fine mist.

2—Regular watering, its frequency and amount determined by watching the plants.

3—Weekly spraying or wiping clean of foliage to control insects and diseases.

SPRAYING indoor plants during winter months is a must to keep your greenery safe from destructive bugs. Use tepid water. Wiping foliage occasionally helps bug control, too.

4—Plenty of light for foliage plants, sunlight for flowering ones.
5—Circulation of air, a temperature not below 50 degrees nor over 70.

6—Fertilizing not oftener than once a month. Tablets and liquid fertilizers are accepted rations; liquid manure gives wonderful results. A little judgment is necessary in using, as too much fertilizer might be disastrous. Follow maker's directions when mixing.

7—Repotting only once a year, then only if a plant's growth warrants it and to pot no more than one size larger. Two parts of garden loam to one part of humus, leaf mold or peat moss and one of sharp sand is general soil mixture.

The complete name of the village of Santa Cruz, N. M., is: La Villa Nueva de Santa Cruz de los Espanoles Mejiancos del Rey Nuetro Senor Carlos Segundo (The New City of the Spanish Mexicans of Our King Charles the Second).

Matter of FACT

The first coins made in the United States, after the establishment of the United States mint at Philadelphia in 1792, were silver half dimes (later spelled dimes). According to old mint tradition these coins were made from George Washington's table silver, brought to the mint from his quarters just two doors away. They were struck on a hand-operated screw press.

The Missile Race

EDITORIAL BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

From the outset the really alarming aspect of Russia's success in launching a satellite has been what this seemed to signify regarding Soviet progress in long range missiles. But a great deal of confusion now surrounds that whole matter.

To begin with, many people, including some who should know better, are referring to both intermediate and long range missiles as "intercontinental." The intermediate, with a range from 700 to perhaps 2,000 miles, is not properly classed as intercontinental. Only the long range, with a maximum distance up to 5,000 miles, belongs in that category.

The Russians claim, of course, that they have fired a true intercontinental missile into a target area. We were skeptical of this at the time, and despite the successful dispatch of "Sputnik" by rocket propulsion, some of our scientists still are doubtful.

They know that the Russians needed a very powerful missile to catapult "Sputnik" 560 miles into the sky, for it weighs 184 pounds and the satellite we are building weighs a mere 21.

Nevertheless, the ability to lift a missile high into space is not the whole story. As the eminent scientist, Dr. Vannevar Bush, notes, there are two other major problems: getting the missile back into the earth's atmosphere without burning it to a crisp, and putting it on the target.

We have only the Russians' word that they have solved these difficulties. "Sputnik" does not prove it. As we all know, parts of the three-stage rocket which launched the satellite are still traveling in outer space along the satellite's orbit.

Admittedly, a good many leaders and millions of ordinary folk everywhere are more disposed than before to believe what the Soviet Union claims. That is the fruit of the Kremlin's great propaganda victory in launching a satellite ahead of us.

And, naturally in the light of recent events, we do not dare sit smugly by and content ourselves with the possibility the Russians have not solved all the problems of the long range missile—even though Bush and others think they have not.

The only safe course for the United States at this moment is to plunge ahead at full speed and with full resources to win the missile race, if that is still possible, or to catch up if we now trail. No American needs to be told any longer what is at stake.

"I'm Not Cool to the Idea Any More"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Drew Pearson says: economy blocks weather bureau's research of hurricanes; Air Force is so pinched it can't fly for weather bureau any more; Ike favored business leaders, Nixon minority leaders in entertaining queen.

WASHINGTON.—Weather bureau officials are burnt up about it, and the people of Texas, Louisiana, Florida and the coast are going to be even more burnt up when they hear the details about it. But Eisenhower economy will soon end Air Force research into the cause and whereabouts of hurricanes.

The two B-50's and one B-47, loaded with electronics equipment, which the Air Force has been flying for the weather bureau into the path of hurricanes, will stop operating in about a month. The $300,000 worth of special scientific equipment will be taken out and the planes will return to other duty.

The Air Force has notified the weather bureau that under the rigid economy program it is pinching every penny and just can't afford to operate these three planes any more.

The weather bureau has argued that in the last four years hurricanes have taken a toll of 1,000 lives and destroyed two billion dollars worth of property. Furthermore, the weather bureau is experimenting with means for breaking up hurricanes to divert them away from populated areas. This experiment, they point out, is even more important than launching a Sputnik.

To finish its research, the weather bureau needs to fly through 24 to 36 hurricanes with the intricate equipment now assembled in the three Air Force planes. So far they've flown through only eight—this in one year of operation.

The weather bureau's budget was cut $2,000,000 last year, which forced the firing of 100 employees. This did not affect the hurricane project, because the Air Force budget has been cut. The weather bureau has promised to try to get an extra $750,000 included in the Commerce Department's Deficiency Budget, but the Air Force, worried over its own forced economies, is skeptical.

So a research project which could be more beneficial to mankind than Sputnik—diverting hurricanes away from populated areas—is scheduled to come to a halt.

PLANES FOR FOOTBALL Down in Little Rock, Governor Faubus had enough Air Force money to operate two National Guard planes to the Texas-Oklahoma game the other day. He sent his executive assistant, Tom Russell, and other Arkansas officers in two planes on a special private hop to see the football game.

The Arkansas officers complained that they were now "subjects," referring of the fact that the National Guard had been federalized. However, this did not seem to prevent them from using two federalized planes for which the Air Force supplies the money.

A total of 180 private a operated chiefly by oil tycoons, landed in Dallas to see the Texas Oklahoma game. Since Texas is a hard-hit hurricane-tornado area, maybe some of them would like to fly the weather bureau's instruments through the hurricanes.

NIXON'S POLITICAL MOVES The public doesn't notice it, but young Dick Nixon seldom misses a political trick. GOP politicians do notice it, however, with grudging admiration. They noted that he even cashed in politically on the luncheon he gave to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

When President Eisenhower entertained the Queen he went in for big business executives who don't swing too many votes. They did, of course, contribute generously to Ike's campaign fund.

His guests included Walter Hovins, president of the Bonwit-Teller Department Store, contribution

$500; Sigurd Larmon, president of Young and Rubicam Advertising Agency, contribution $1,500; Barry T. Lethead, president of the Cluett Peabody Shirt Company, contribution $3,000; Bob Woodruff, head of Coca-Cola, who with his wife contributed $8,450.

There was also Ellis Slater of Seagram's Whiskey, contribution $2,500. His company got the valuable oil concession in the Lacassine Game Reserve where no oil drilling had ever been permitted by the Democrats. Also present was Mrs. Floyd Odium, the former Jackie Cochrane, who kicked in the nice little amount of $20,500 to the Ike campaign fund. Mrs. Odium's husband, who is head of the Atlas Corporation and North east Airlines, recently received a juicy air license to operate to Miami despite a CAB examiner's recommendation to the contrary.

Also at the dinner was Ike's brother-in-law, Col. Gordon Moore, who has conducted a very thriving lobbying business in Washington and who in Truman's day would have been called a five-percent. Another dinner guest was George E. Allen, who in Truman's day was called the "White House Jester" but was recently described by the Associated Press as the president's "occasional" golfer. This Gettysburg farm for him partner. Actually Allen purchased this Gettysburg farm for him and was a partner with him in the ownership of a Howard Johnson restaurant. He is one of Ike's most frequent bridge and golfing partners.

Nixon, however, played his cards differently. To his luncheon for the Queen on Capitol Hill he invited David McDonald, president of the United Steel Workers, and Claude A. Barnett, director of the Associated Negro Press, together with their wives. Eisenhower invited no labor leaders or representatives of minority groups; Nixon invited no big business moguls.

Coal first replaced charcoal as a blast furnace fuel in steel production shortly before the end of the 19th century. Today steel production calls for more than 100,000 tons of coal a year.

Matter of FACT

Contrary to popular thinking, Westminster Abbey has not always been a great church where English kings are crowned and the famous dead are buried. The abbey was probably begun during the eighth century as a home for Benedictine monks, who lived a simple life there compared to the pomp and ceremony connected with present-day coronations in the abbey. A new church at Westminster was begun about 1050 by Edward the Confessor, and every British monarch from William the Conqueror to Elizabeth the Second was crowned there, except Edward the Fifth, who was slain in the Tower of London as a boy.

Illinois Christmas Tree Growers Begin to Show Effect on Markets

By SAM HANCOCK

United Press Staff Correspondent BENTON, Ill. (U.P.)—Illinois Christmas tree growers are beginning to flex their muscles with noticeable effect in the battle for the markets.

Martin Anderson, a state forester here, says he's getting more inquiries from farmers each year about tree-growing, and more than half of them concern Christmas trees.

"Right now, the market is bigger than the supply down here," said Anderson whose district embraces 12 southern Illinois counties.

He estimates that 15 new Christmas tree plantations were started in his district alone this spring when 150,000 seedlings were planted. Earlier plantations were wiped out by dry years in 1952 and 1953 and the farmers had to start all over.

Farmers in his district found St. Louis and Chicago markets last Christmas and expect to repeat this year when they will ship more than 3,000 trees.

Most of the trees are Scotch

pires, but white, red and jack pines and Douglas fir and spruce have some representation.

Anderson said 25 per cent of the Christmas trees used in Illinois last year were grown in the state. The Illinois Christmas Tree Growers Assn., formed last year, hopes to increase that percentage.

"I think Illinois has a tremendous future in the Christmas tree growing business in the next five to ten years," Anderson said.

Illinois now gets most of its trees from Canada and the northwest and northeast sections of the United States.

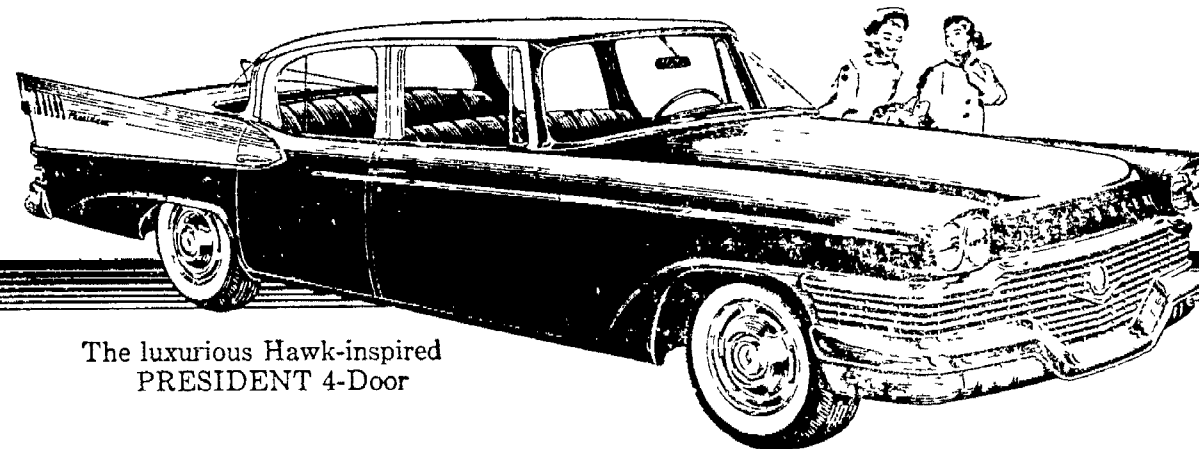

Anderson sees a great potential market for Illinois trees in states to the south because of the difficulty in growing northern pines there.

Christmas trees find a happy home on hill and poor land which would not produce rich crop yields.

And at the same time they bring revenue to the farmers, they check soil erosion from rain and wind.

Brief Funeral Services for Gangster Boss

NEW YORK (AP)—Albert Anastasia, former guiding hand of Brooklyn's Murder Inc., was buried today without the rites of the Roman Catholic Church in which his brother is a priest.

Brief services were held in a Brooklyn funeral parlor. The 55-year-old gangster, who bossed the underworld's "enforcement squad" and is said to have slain at least 63 persons in the 1930s, was buried in non-denominational Greenwood Cemetery.

Anastasia was shot to death Friday in a Manhattan hotel barbershop. He had beat four murder indictments, a "perfect case" against him and one sentence to the electric chair.

Among the mourners was his most prominent brother, Anthony (Tough Tony) Anastasia, boss of the Brooklyn waterfront whose rackets the dead Albert was said to have controlled from his New Jersey mansion.

Longshoremen in work clothes and two top officials of the independent International Longshoremen's Assn., President William A. Bradley and chief organizer Thomas Gleason, were among those who paid their respects to the dead gangster before the services.

Gromyko Urges Broader Group On Disarmament

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union called on the United Nations today to junk its Disarmament Commission and create a new and larger disarmament group composed of all 82 U. N. members.

The proposal, made in a letter from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and broadcast today by Radio Moscow, termed the 12-power commission and its subcommittee "too narrow a circle of states."

Gromyko called for "fresh efforts" to solve the disarmament problems.

This indicated the Soviet Union favored scrapping the five months of disarmament discussions it held with Britain, France, Canada and the United States in London this year and beginning anew and tossing out any Western proposals.

Gromyko also suggested that future disarmament talks be conducted in public. This year's subcommittee talks were secret with transcripts released after they were over.

The Soviet proposal appeared to set back any hopes of reaching any disarmament agreement the Russians would adhere to during the current session of the U. N. General Assembly.

AFL-CIO Plans Campaign for Public Relations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AFL-CIO will launch a $1,200,000 public relations campaign next year to restore organized labor's reputation, a spokesman for the federation announced today.

A key objective of the campaign would be to head off threatened anti-labor legislation in Congress and in state legislatures.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council, in authorizing the $100,000-a-month campaign, left details to a nine-man committee headed by William C. Birnright, president of the Barber's Union.

Disclosures by the Senate Racke Committee of corruption in some unions have damaged labor's general standing with the public and congress, labor leaders fear. The council's action last week in suspending the scandal-stricken Teamsters Union and threatening ouster of the Bakery Workers and United Textile Workers would be publicized in the campaign. The three unions were told to eliminate officials charged with corruption or leave the AFL-CIO.

The money would be spent largely on radio and television time, newspaper advertisements and possibly films to tell the federation's study, the spokesman said.

Auto Firms Hike Prices

DETROIT (AP)—The Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac divisions of General Motors all announced price increases today for their 1958 model automobiles.

"Suggested factory list price" hikes announced by the divisions were Chevrolet 4.5 to 5 per cent, Cadillac 3.3 per cent, Buick 2.3 per cent and Oldsmobile 2.0 per cent.

Pontiac, which said its hikes would range from $50 on the two-door Chieftain sedan to $217 on the four-door Catalina sedan, did not give an overall percentage figure.

U. S. Steps Up Progress Reports On Its Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States stepped up its barrage of progress reports on missiles today.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, reported that early work on a Nike Zeus rocket designed to intercept and destroy continent-spanning ballistic missiles has been "crowned with success" so far.

His statement came on the heels of:

—Disclosure by the Navy that it soon will fire a "Polaris" intermediate range ballistic missile from an atomic submarine deep in the sea.

—An Air Force announcement that its bomber-launched "Rascal" missile has been tested successfully in an air-to-ground test against a long-distance target.

Disclose Cruise Under Arctic Ice By Sub Nautilus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The atomic-powered submarine Nautilus recently traveled more than 1,000 miles under the Arctic ice pack in five and one-half days in an eerie underwater cruise to obtain scientific data.

Navy Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. disclosed the cruise Sunday on his arrival on the West Coast to speak to Republican money-raising groups.

"The Nautilus has scored another first," Gates said.

"Just recently, she has completed an Arctic cruise to enable scientific and operational personnel to obtain data on under-ice conditions, oceanographic studies of currents and cold weather operations of equipment and machinery."

"The Nautilus spent a total of five and one-half days under the Arctic ice pack, traveling over a thousand miles while gathering these scientific data."

Gates said the sub entered the Arctic from the Atlantic Ocean, but gave no further details.

Gates said the Nautilus' feat in the Arctic shows that the submarine will displace the depth charge as the anti-submarine weapon.

"We are producing better depth charges," Gates said. "We tested an atomic one a few days ago. But increased speeds and sonar equipment, such as that carried by the Nautilus, means that it will be sub against sub."

The body was received by the Thornton funeral home at Carrier Mills at 2:30 p. m. Saturday and the funeral was held in the Baptist church in Simpson at 1:30 p. m. Sunday. Rev. Ernest Ammon officiated and burial was in the Kerley cemetery.

Mr. Dixon is survived by his wife, two sons, and three grandchildren.

In 1803, after the United States had purchased the Louisiana territory from France for $15,000,000, President Thomas Jefferson chose two men to explore the vast region, Meriwether Lewis and Captain William Clark. More than 20 men were members of their expedition, which lasted two years and four months and covered 8,000 miles. The expedition was conducted on a congressional appropriation of only $2,500.

Your autumn knits take readily to soap-and-water with the right handling. Washable orlon knit (left) can be washed at night, worn again the next morning. If it's placed on a contour hanger, it will dry without a shoulder ridge. Buttoning the front lines the dress up so that no pressing is needed. Newest way to dry sweaters (center) is with canvas jiffy dryer that permits air to circulate through garment so that both sides dry at once. Drying takes half the time this way. All-wool knit suit (right) has horizontally-ribbed jacket and vertically ribbed skirt with knitted-in pleats. And it's washable. Paper clips will keep the pleats in place during the drying process and make them neat and smooth.

Following These Suggestions Will Help Indoor Gardening

By HENRY FREE

With work in your outdoor garden limited to cleaning up the beds as the remaining annuals, chrysanthemums and roses fade, the care of the indoor plants assumes real importance. Given common-sense care—and reasonable sunlight—house plants will thrive and bloom for the earnest gardener.

Not all homes lend themselves to good growing conditions. One must choose plants for the place in which they are to grow, keeping in mind their ability for the purpose and general conditions.

Where sunlight is nil, the indoor gardener cannot expect blooms and therefore must select those foliage plants which tolerate shade and artificial light. The list of such plants, while not long, includes foliage, such as the new varieties of philodendron and sanseveria.

For the sunny windows, the indoor gardener will receive ample reward from African violets, fibrous begonias, azaleas, Christmas cactus, gardenias and camellias. The last two are sturdy, upright plants and in bloom from November onward. But how the mealy bugs thrive on them unless the foliage is sprayed with tepid water every three or four days.

Once each fortnight spray these and all other flowering plants with a Black Leaf 40 soapy water solution. And be sure to include the African violets despite the advice of never wetting their foliage.

The Old Gardener believes that indoor gardening can be successful by observing the following:

1—Dry atmosphere must be counteracted by any practical means: glazed or painted clay pots always with drainage holes, water pans on radiators, pans of gravel holding water beneath pots, daily spraying with a fine mist.

2—Regular watering, its frequency and amount determined by watching the plants.

3—Weekly spraying or wiping clean of foliage to control insects and diseases.

SPRAYING indoor plants during winter months is a must to keep your greenery safe from destructive bugs. Use tepid water. Wiping foliage occasionally helps bug control, too.

4—Plenty of light for foliage plants, sunlight for flowering ones. 5—Circulation of air, a temperature not below 50 degrees nor over 70.

6—Fertilizing not oftener than once a month. Tablets and liquid fertilizers are accepted ration; liquid manure gives wonderful results. A little judgment is necessary in using, as too much fertilizer might be disastrous. Follow maker's directions when mixing.

7—Repotting only once a year, then only if a plant's growth warrants it and to pot no more than one size larger. Two parts of garden loam to one part of humus, leaf mold or peat moss and one of sharp sand is general soil mixture.

The complete name of the village of Santa Cruz, N. M., is: La Villa Nueva de Santa Cruz de los Espanoles Mejiancos del Rey Nuestro Senor Carlos Segundo (The New City of the Spanish Mexicans of Our King Charles the Second).

Matter of FACT

The first coins made in the United States, after the establishment of the United States mint at Philadelphia in 1792, were silver half dimes (later spelled dimes). According to old mint tradition these coins were made from George Washington's table silver, brought to the mint from his quarters just two doors away. They were struck on a hand-operated screw press.

The Missile Race

EDITORIAL BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

From the outset the really alarming aspect of Russia's success in launching a satellite has been what this seemed to signify regarding Soviet progress in long range missiles. But a great deal of confusion now surrounds that whole matter.

To begin with, many people, including some who should know better, are referring to both intermediate and long range missiles as "intercontinental." The intermediate, with a range from 700 to perhaps 2,000 miles, is not properly classed as intercontinental. Only the long range, with a maximum distance up to 5,000 miles, belongs in that category.

The Russians claim, of course, that they have fired a true intercontinental missile into a target area. We were skeptical of this at the time, and despite the successful dispatch of "Sputnik" by rocket propulsion, some of our scientists still are doubtful.

They know that the Russians needed a very powerful missile to catapult "Sputnik" 560 miles into the sky, for it weighs 184 pounds and the satellite we are building weighs a mere 21.

Nevertheless, the ability to lift a missile high into space is not the whole story. As the eminent scientist, Dr. Vannevar Bush, notes, there are two other major problems: getting the missile back into the earth's atmosphere without burning it to a crisp, and putting it on the target.

We have only the Russians' word that they have solved these difficulties. "Sputnik" does not prove it. As we all know, parts of the three-stage rocket which launched the satellite are still traveling in outer space along the satellite's orbit.

Admittedly, a good many leaders and millions of ordinary folk everywhere are more disposed than before to believe what the Soviet Union claims. That is the fruit of the Kremlin's great propaganda victory in launching a satellite ahead of us.

And, naturally in the light of recent events, we do not dare sit smugly by and content ourselves with the possibility the Russians have not solved all the problems of the long range missile—even though Bush and others think they have not.

The only safe course for the United States at this moment is to plunge ahead at full speed and with full resources to win the missile race, if that is still possible, or to catch up if we now trail. No American needs to be told any longer what is at stake.

"I'm Not Cool to the Idea Any More"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Drew Pearson says: economy blocks weather bureau's search of hurricanes; Air Force is so pinched it can't fly for weather bureau any more; Ike favored business leaders, Nixon minority leaders in entertaining guests.

WASHINGTON.—Weather bureau officials are burnt up about it, and the people of Texas, Louisiana, Florida and the coast are going to be even more burnt up when they hear the details about it. But Eisenhower economy will soon end Air Force research into the cause and whereabouts of hurricanes.

The two B-50's and one B-47, loaded with electronics equipment, which the Air Force has been flying for the weather bureau into the path of hurricanes, will stop operating in about a month. The $500,000 worth of special scientific equipment will be taken out and the planes will return to other duty.

The Air Force has notified the weather bureau that under the rigid economy program it is pinching every penny and just can't afford to operate these three planes any more.

The weather bureau has argued that in the last four years hurricanes have taken a toll of 1,000 lives and destroyed two billion dollars worth of property. Furthermore, the weather bureau is experimenting with means for breaking up hurricanes to divert them away from populated areas. This experiment, they point out, is even more important than launching a Sputnik.

To finish its research, the weather bureau needs to fly through 24 to 36 hurricanes with the intricate equipment now assembled in the three Air Force planes. So far they've flown through only eight—this in one year of operation.

The weather bureau's budget was cut $2,000,000 last year, which forced the firing of 100 employees. This did not affect the hurricane project, because the Air Force budget has been cut. The weather bureau has promised to try to get an extra $750,000 included in the Commerce Department's Deficiency Budget, but the Air Force, worried over its own forced economies, is skeptical.

So a research project which could be more beneficial to mankind than Sputnik—diverting hurricanes away from populated areas—is scheduled to come to a halt.

PLANES FOR FOOTBALL Down in Little Rock, Governor Faubus had enough Air Force money to operate two National Guard planes to the Texas-Oklahoma game the other day. He sent his executive assistant, Tom Russell, and other Arkansas officers in two planes on a special private hop to see the football game.

The Arkansas officers complained that they were now "subjects," referring to the fact that the National Guard had been federalized. However, this did not seem to prevent them from using two federalized planes for which the Air Force supplies the money.

A total of 180 private a operated chiefly by oil tycoons, landed in Dallas to see the Texas Oklahoma game. Since Texas is a hard-hit hurricane-tornado area, maybe some of them would like to fly the weather bureau's instruments through the hurricanes.

NIXON'S POLITICAL MOVES The public doesn't notice it, but young Dick Nixon seldom misses a political trick. GOP politicians do notice it, however, with grudging admiration. They noted that he even cashed in politically on the luncheon he gave to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

When President Eisenhower entertained the Queen he went in for big business executives who did not swing too many votes. They did, of course, contribute generously to Ike's campaign fund.

His guests included Walter Hoving, president of the Bonwit-Teller Department Store, contribution

$500; Sigurd Larmon, president of Young and Rubicam Advertising Agency, contribution $1,500; Barry T. Leithead, president of the Cluett Peabody Shirt Company, contribution $3,000; Bob Woodruff, head of Coca-Cola, who with his wife contributed $8,450.

There was also Ellis Slater of Seagram's Whiskey, contribution $2,500. His company got the valuable oil concession in the Lacasine Game Reserve where no oil drilling had ever been permitted by the Democrats. Also present was Mrs. Floyd Odlum, the former Jackie Cochrane, who kicked in the nice little amount of $20,500 to the Ike campaign fund. Mrs. Odlum's husband, who is head of the Atlas Corporation and North east Airlines, recently received a juicy air license to operate to Miami despite a CAB examiner's recommendation to the contrary.

Also at the dinner was Ike's brother-in-law, Col. Gordon Moore, who has conducted a very thriving lobbying business in Washington and who in Truman's day would have been called a five-percenter. Another dinner guest was George E. Allen, who in Truman's day was called the "White House Jester" but was recently described by the Associated Press as the president's "occasional" golfing partner. Actually Allen purchased this Gettysburg farm for him and was a partner with him in the ownership of a Howard Johnson restaurant. He is one of Ike's most frequent bridge and golfing partners.

Nixon, however, played his cards differently. To his luncheon for the Queen on Capitol Hill he invited David McDonald, president of the United Steel Workers, and Claude A. Barnett, director of the Associated Negro Press, together with their wives. Eisenhower invited no labor leaders or representatives of minority groups; Nixon invited no big business moguls.

Coal first replaced charcoal as a blast furnace fuel in steel production shortly before the end of the 19th century. Today steel production calls for more than 100,000 900 tons of coal a year.

Matter of FACT

Contrary to popular thinking, Westminster Abbey has not always been a great church where English kings are crowned and the famous dead are buried. The abbey was probably begun during the eighth century as a home for Benedictine monks, who lived a simple life there compared to the pomp and ceremony connected with present-day coronations in the abbey. A new church at Westminster was begun about 1050 by Edward the Confessor, and every British monarch from William the Conqueror to Elizabeth the Second was crowned there, except Edward the Fifth, who was slain in the Tower of London as a boy.

Illinois Christmas Tree Growers Begin to Show Effect on Markets

By SAM HANCOCK

United Press Staff Correspondent BENTON, Ill. (AP) — Illinois Christmas tree growers are beginning to flex their muscles with noticeable effect in the battle for the markets.

Martin Anderson, a state forester here, says he's getting more inquiries from farmers each year about tree-growing, and more than half of them concern Christmas trees.

"Right now, the market is bigger than the supply down here, said Anderson whose district embraces 12 southern Illinois counties.

He estimates that 15 new Christmas tree plantations were started in his district alone this spring when 150,000 seedlings were planted. Earlier plantations were wiped out by dry years in 1952 and 1953 and the farmers had to start all over.

Farmers in his district found St. Louis and Chicago markets last Christmas and expect to repeat this year when they will ship more than 3,000 trees.

Most of the trees are Scotch

pires, but white, red and jack pines and Douglas fir and spruce have some representation.

Anderson said 25 per cent of the Christmas trees used in Illinois last year were grown in the state. The Illinois Christmas Tree Growers Assn., formed last year, hopes to increase that percentage.

"I think Illinois has a tremendous future in the Christmas tree growing business in the next five to ten years," Anderson said.

Illinois now gets most of its trees from Canada and the northwest and northeast sections of the United States.

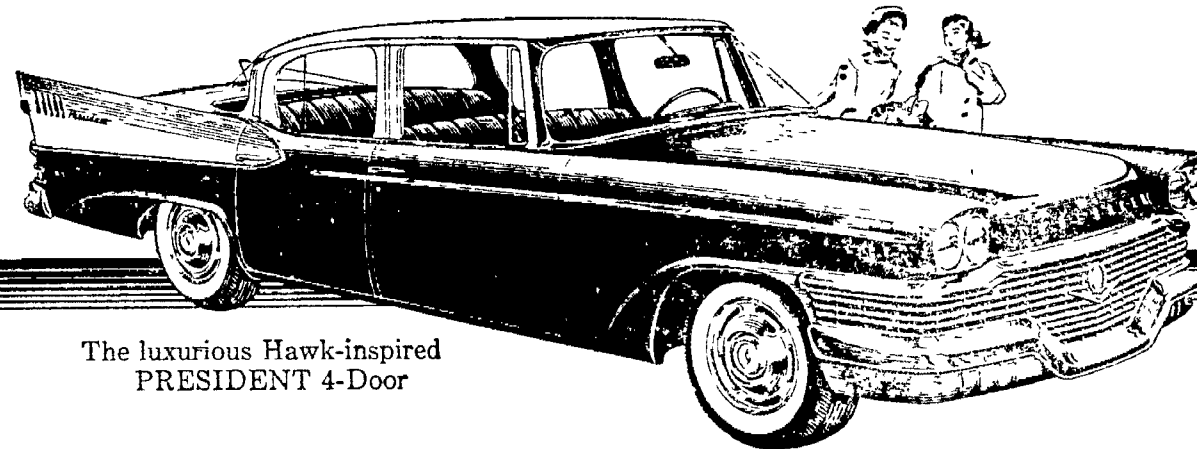

Anderson sees a great potential market for Illinois trees in states to the south because of the difficulty in growing northern pines there.

Christmas trees find a happy home on hill, and poor land which would not produce rich crop yields.

And at the same time they bring revenue to the farmers, they check soil erosion from rain and wind.

Disclose Cruise Under Arctic Ice By Sub Nautilus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The atomic-powered submarine Nautilus recently traveled more than 1,000 miles under the Arctic ice pack in five and one-half days in an eerie underwater cruise to obtain scientific data.

Navy Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. disclosed the cruise Sunday on his arrival on the West Coast to speak to Republican money-raising groups.

"The Nautilus has scored another first," Gates said.

"Just recently, she has completed an Arctic cruise to enable scientific and operational personnel to obtain data on under-ice conditions, oceanographic studies of currents and cold weather operations of equipment and machinery.

"The Nautilus spent a total of five and one-half days under the Arctic ice pack, traveling over a thousand miles while gathering these scientific data."

Gates said the sub entered the Arctic from the Atlantic Ocean, but gave no further details.

Gates said the Nautilus' feat in the Arctic shows that the submarine will displace the depth charge as the anti-submarine weapon.

"We are producing better depth charges," Gates said. "We tested an atomic one a few days ago. But increased speeds and sonar equipment, such as that carried by the Nautilus, means that it will be sub against sub."

Rites Held Sunday For Ernie Dixon, 65, Former Simpson Resident

Ernie Dixon, 65, a retired railroader and former resident of Simpson, died in the hospital at Geneva, at 9 a. m. Friday. He was a resident of Batavia at the time of his death and had been taken to the hospital with a heart attack a few hours before he died. The body was received by the Thornton funeral home at Carrier Mills at 2:30 p. m. Saturday and the funeral was held in the Baptist church in Simpson at 1:30 p. m. Sunday. Rev. Ernest Ammon officiated and burial was in the Kerley cemetery.

Mr. Dixon is survived by his wife, two sons, and three grandchildren.

Auto Firms Hike Prices

DETROIT (AP)—The Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac divisions of General Motors all announced price increases today for their 1958 model automobiles.

"Suggested factory list price" hikes announced by the divisions were Chevrolet 4.5 to 5 per cent, Cadillac 3.3 per cent, Buick 2.3 per cent and Oldsmobile 2.0 per cent. Pontiac, which said its hikes would range from $50 on the two-door Chieftain sedan to $217 on the four-door Catalina sedan, did not give an overall percentage figure.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States stepped up its barrage of progress reports on missiles today.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, reported that early work on a Nike Zeus rocket designed to intercept and destroy continent-spanning ballistic missiles has been "crowned with success" so far.

His statement came on the heels of: —Disclosure by the Navy that it soon will fire a "Polaris" intermediate range ballistic missile from an atomic submarine deep in the sea.

—An Air Force announcement that its bomber-launched "Rascal" missile has been tested successfully in an air-to-ground test against a long-distance target.

Girl Scouting

SCOUT TROOP 263 MAKES BIKE HIKE

The girls of Scout troop No. 263 made a bike hike around the Harrisburg reservoir Sunday afternoon, as part of the requirement for earning their cyclist badges. After exploring around the reservoir, they ate their nose-bag lunches and cycled back to town. Those attending were Elsa Durham, Joyce Pickford, Sandy Neville, Margaret Robinson, Belle Price, Carrie Vaughn, cyclist leader, Mrs. Jack Vaughn, and troop leader, Mrs. J. P. Robinson.

Gromyko Urges Broader Group On Disarmament

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union called on the United Nations today to junk its Disarmament Commission and five-power subcommittee and create a new and larger disarmament group composed of all 82 U. N. members.

The proposal, made in a letter from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and broadcast today by Radio Moscow, termed the 12-power commission and its subcommittee "too narrow a circle of states."

Gromyko called for "fresh efforts" to solve the disarmament problems.

This indicated the Soviet Union favored scrapping the five months of disarmament discussions it held with Britain, France, Canada and the United States in London this year and beginning anew and tossing out any Western proposals.

Gromyko also suggested that future disarmament talks be conducted in public. This year's subcommittee talks were secret with transcripts released after they were over.

The Soviet proposal appeared to set back any hopes of reaching any disarmament agreement the Russians would adhere to during the current session of the U. N. General Assembly.

AFL-CIO Plans Campaign for Public Relations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AFL-CIO will launch a $1,200,000 public relations campaign next year to restore organized labor's reputation, a spokesman for the federation announced today.

A key objective of the campaign would be to head off threatened anti-labor legislation in Congress and in state legislatures.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council, in authorizing the $100,000-a-month campaign, left details to a nine-man committee headed by William C. Birnright, president of the Barber's Union.

Disclosure by the Senate Rack-ets Committee of corruption in some unions have damaged labor's general standing with the public and congress, labor leaders fear. The council's action last week in suspending the scandal-stricken Teamsters Union and threatening ouster of the Bakery Workers and United Textile Workers would be publicized in the campaign. The three unions were told to eliminate officials charged with corruption or leave the AFL-CIO.

The money would be spent largely on radio and television time, newspaper advertisements and possibly films to tell the federation's study, the spokesman said.

Son of Junction Couple Dies In Mexico City

Charles Belew, 79, a former Harrisburg resident, died in Reno, Ark., Saturday morning. He is survived by his wife, Nancy, and a niece living in Harrisburg. Mrs. Blanche Chambers, funeral services will be held in Reno at 2 p. m. today.

Mr. Belew was a farmer and left the Harrisburg community about ten years ago.

Fumes of the highly volatile ester form of 2,4-D can be carried for several miles by air currents, and damage susceptible plants all along the way.

Brief Funeral Services for Gangster Boss

NEW YORK (AP)—Albert Anastasia, former guiding hand of Brooklyn's Murder Inc., was buried today without the rites of the Roman Catholic Church in which his brother is a priest.

Brief services were held in a Brooklyn funeral parlor. The 55-year-old gangster, who bossed the underworld's "enforcement squad" and is said to have slain at least 63 persons in the 1930s, was buried in non-denominational Greenwood Cemetery.

Anastasia was shot to death Friday in a Manhattan hotel barbershop. He had beat four murder indictments, a "perfect case" against him and one sentence to the electric chair.

Among the mourners was his most prominent brother, Anthony (Tough Tony) Anastasia, boss of the Brooklyn waterfront whose rackets the dead Albert was said to have controlled from his New Jersey mansion.

Longshoremen in work clothes and two top officials of the independent International Longshoremen's Assn., President William A. Bradley and chief organizer Thomas Gleason, were among those who paid their respects to the dead gangster before the services.

Plan National Shrine Over Sunken Battleship Arizona

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Marvin R. Dee, Chicago, national commandant of the Navy Club, today announced plans for erection of a permanent national shrine around and over the sunken battleship U. S. S. Arizona off Ford Island at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

The Arizona shrine will be one of the program of the Pacific War Memorial Commission and will cost about $500,000, Dee said.

The money will be raised by public subscription, starting with a kickoff dinner in Hawaii on Dec. 7, the anniversary of the 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor.

The Navy Club will lead the campaign drive. The shrine will include an enclosed observation bridge across the bulk of the sunken ship and a causeway to the Ford Island beach.

Two Priests Among Four Killed in Light Plane Crash

LOWELL, Ind. (AP)—A snow and sleet storm was blamed today for a light plane crash which killed four men, including two Roman Catholic priests, Saturday night. The plane was returning from the Notre Dame-Pittsburgh football game in South Bend.

The dead, all from Rockford, Ill., were the Rev. Donald Schuler, 29, vice chancellor of the Rockford diocese and secretary to Bishop Loras Lane; the Rev. Francis McNally, pastor of the St. Patrick's Church; George Arvindson, 35, and Walter Stone, both salesmen.

State police said Stone was piloting the twin-engine plane, a new Beechcraft Bonanza, when it crashed in a field on the Myron Kenny farm three miles west of here.

Navy Studying Penguins

MOORESTOWN, N. J. (AP)—The U. S. Navy is seriously trying to find out how a lady penguin keeps her eggs warm, the deputy chief of naval research told a men's club here Sunday. Capt. A. B. Metzger said Naval research believes the answer may give a clue to protecting men from the bitter cold of polar regions and high altitudes. The Navy also is studying desert birds which live on "little if any water" in order to learn more about how men stranded on life rafts can survive, he said.

Some of the olive trees in Palestine are said to date back to the beginning of the Christian era.

In 1803, after the United States had purchased the Louisiana territory from France for $15,000,000, President Thomas Jefferson chose two men to explore the vast region, Meriwether Lewis and Captain William Clark. More than 20 men were members of their expedition, which lasted two years and four months and covered 8,000 miles. The expedition was conducted on a congressional appropriation of only $2,500.

And laughter hides my tears.
It seems like only yesterday,
Instead of one long year.
I know your soul is now at rest,
And free from care and pain.
But this world would seem like heaven.

SEEING DOUBLE?—With an assist from a sneaky camera, Bobby Renn of Florida State hands off to Bobby Renn. And that's no typographical error. As a quarterback, the 175-pound Renn was named Back-of-the-Week by Florida football writers. The junior from Henderson, N. C., won the same honor as a left halfback. He's the right guy in the right place.

Forty-Niners' President Fatally Stricken; Team Edges Bears, 21-17

By United Press
The San Francisco Forty-Niners, shocked by the death of their president during another of their narrow victories, and the Cleveland Browns took undisputed division leads Sunday in what promises to be the wildest races in National Football League history.

Anthony J. (Tony) Morabito, advised to "get out of football" after he had a heart attack several years ago, suffered another in the second quarter at San Francisco. He was dead when his Forty-Niners wiped out a 17-7 halftime deficit and edged the Chicago Bears, 21-17. The Bears were five-point favorites.

The Forty-Niners started the day tied with the Baltimore Colts and Detroit Lions for the Western Division lead. Los Angeles Rams whipped Detroit, 35-17, and the Green Bay Packers upset Baltimore, 24-21, on Babe Parilli's 75-yard scoring pass to Bill Howton in the last 29 seconds.

Those results left San Francisco alone at the top but Coach Frankie Albert couldn't enjoy the third vic-

Veteran Auto Racer Killed on Concord Speedway

CONCORD, N. C. — A 31-year-old Richmond, Va., truck driver and veteran auto racer was killed Sunday when his car tumbled down a 15-foot embankment while making a turn on the Concord Speedway.

The crash in which Earl Bryant was killed instantly, came on the eighth lap of the U. S. Modified Championship and Lee Kirby Memorial Race. Bryant was making a turn with several other cars and left the race track on the outside, crashing down the embankment and into an eight-inch pine tree.

The race was the fifth annual running of the 100-mile event. The accident was the first fatal one since the track opened in 1946.

Banjo Matthews of Asheville, N. C., won the 200-lap event, clocking 53.5 miles per hour. Fireball Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., the 1955 winner, was second and Earl Moss of Creedmoore, N. C., was third.

Braves Fire Three Coaches

MILWAUKEE — Bullpen Coach Bob Keely today was the only survivor of a wholesale shakeup in the coaching staff of the world champion Milwaukee Braves that saw three of Manager Fred Haney's aides fired.

The Braves' front office discharged Pitching Coach Charlie Root, Third Base Coach Connie Ryan and First Base Coach John Riddle in a surprise move late Saturday.

Former major league hurler Whitlow Wyatt of the Philadelphia Phillies' staff was immediately named the new pitching coach. John Fitzpatrick, a coach at Holywood in 1957 and a long-time friend of Haney's, got Riddle's job.

The Braves said a third base boss will be hired later. Candidates rumored for the post were Ben Geraghy and Sibby Sisti of the Milwaukee minor league organization. Coach Eddie Stanky of the Cleveland Indians and Charlie Dressen, who resigned Friday as assistant to President Calvin Griffith of the Washington Senators.

Ryan's dismissal had been predicted because of reported rifts with Haney and Root was said to have been considering retirement when the Braves dropped their axe. Riddle's dismissal was unexpected.

Unbeaten Iowa, Texas A&M, Notre Dame Face Tough, 1-Loss Opponents This Week

By United Press
Four of the nation's six remaining unbeaten and untied major powers will face tough, once-beaten opponents next Saturday when the final push for lucrative bowl bids begins in earnest.

Oklahoma, its national crown drooping a bit to the port side after Saturday's 14-13 squeaker with Colorado, should have relatively easy pickings with Kansas State (2-3-1) and Auburn, 48-7 victor over Houston Saturday night, will be a solid choice over Florida.

But the other four — second-ranked Iowa, third-ranked Texas A&M, fifth-ranked Notre Dame and unbeaten and untied Dartmouth — could easily be knocked out of the elite group. In Texas A&M's case, a defeat could mean no telephone call from the Cotton Bowl committee.

Shotgun Season For Deer Will Open On Friday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Illinois' first shotgun deer season in history will be opened Friday and will last exactly three days, the state Department of Conservation today reminded resident hunters who have received permits for the season.

Director Glen D. Palmer issued the following warnings:

Hunters must have a permit for a specific county.
Hunters must have permission of the landowner to hunt.
Hunters must wear red or yellow clothing for their own protection (solid color not advised; bright cap and vest recommended).

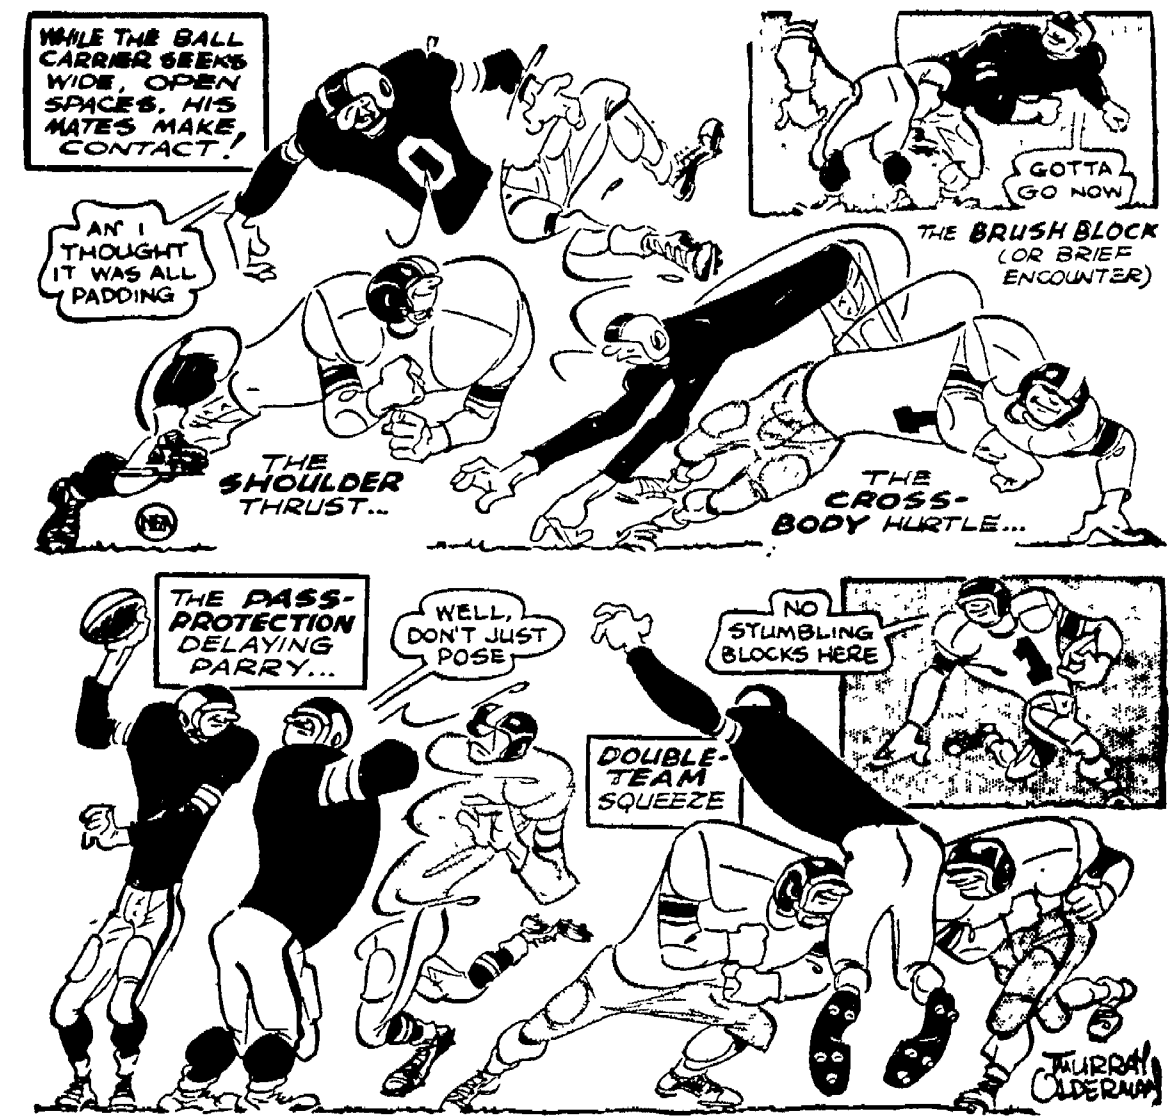

Successful hunters must bring their deer to the official check station in each county. Location of said check stations was included with each permit.

The director emphasized that only shotguns and rifled slugs may be used during this deer season. Palmer noticed that a news story last week carried the erroneous statement that Illinois would have a rifle season.

"Rifled slug is the type of shot gun shell which is acceptable under the Illinois deer law," he declared. "Anyone found hunting with a rifle will be arrested and given the maximum penalty. Shotguns are dangerous enough in our limited big game country without the additional danger of high powered rifles."

The bow and arrow season was closed last week at Horseshoe Lake refuge where Leo Beasley of Miller City got a 16-point buck weighing 272 pounds a week ago Sunday. The deer was judged to be 4 1-2 years old, and was one of the largest seen in Illinois.

Another interesting phase of this successful deer hunt story is the fact that Beasley purchased a bow and arrows the Saturday before opening of the deer season. He practiced faithfully until satisfied he was ready for a hunt. His bow had a 48-pound pull and he used the bodkin type arrow. Beasley must have done a good job of training himself, for he not only bagged the largest deer on Horseshoe island, but he drove home four arrows, any one of which might have been enough to fell the animal.

CHEF'S SPECIAL—This grouper, five feet, seven-and-a-half inches in length, was speared just off the beach of San Juan, Puerto Rico, by Don Ensign, right, with the help of Gary Hoyt. It took six men to drag the 255-pounder out of the water. The fishermen sold it to a hotel chef for $52. Very nice catch.

Lowell E. Trovillion New Basketball Coach at Pope County High School

Lowell E. Trovillion, who has officiated in many basketball games in this area during the past several years, is the new cage coach at Pope County high school, Golconda.

Mr. Trovillion, formerly principal and coach at Robbs grade school, succeeds Gene Dick as Pope County high school mentor.

The roster of the Pope County Pirates, who open the 1957-58 season with a Greater Egyptian conference game at Cave-in-Rock Nov. 12, contains three seniors, seven juniors and two sophomores.

Coming to Pope Co. was a sort of "homecoming" for Coach Trovillion as half of his varsity squad were former Robbs grade school students.

The team's height is provided by senior Carlos King and sophomore Kenneth Richards, each at 6-3. King was the top Pirate point-maker during the past season, counting 24 points in BEC play.

Other members of the 12-player squad: Bob Smith 5-10 and James Crum 5-7, seniors; Donald Boaz 5-8, James Tittsworth 5-7, Gene Trovillion 5-8, Jerry Jones 5-9, Jerry Brown 6-1, James Webb 6-1, Zan Fulkerson 6-0, all juniors; Kenneth Barger 6-0 sophomore.

Tips on Traffic Safety

By CHARLES F. CARPENTIER
Secretary of State

If you are planning a fall vacation to some part of the country where you will be driving on hills, here are some helpful tips for your trip.

On steep hills get a good running start and, if it is necessary to shift gears, do so in time to prevent stalling or losing speed. The speed of a medium or heavy car should not drop below 20 miles per hour in second, although the very light cars can drop to 16. There is, of course, no need to shift with an automatic transmission, but on exceptionally steep hills the selector may be placed at low.

Do not cross the crest of a hill at a speed of more than 40 miles per hour. Always anticipate meeting a reckless driver in your lane or overtaking a truck at the crest of a hill. It is a good idea to flash your lights at night as you immediately approach the crest of a hill.

And remember to always descend a steep hill in the same gear you used to go up the hill.

If the general drainage of your farm is good but you have a field with troublesome wet spots, you may need to build a random surface drainage system that connects the pockets.

XIX
It didn't make any difference how the Manhattan Homicide Squad, state, county and city of New York, was shifted around, split up, reorganized. When men spoke of the Inspector in the tone the lieutenant had used they meant one man. That man was Christopher McKee, formerly the head of the entire Manhattan Homicide Squad until it was subdivided.

The tall Scotsman had been out of New York when Grant Melville was killed. In his review of back work the report on the dead painter came across his desk. He read it idly at first, then with interest, plucked out the essentials, and sent for the first-grade detective, Brownell, who thought that the girl, Sarah Casement, might have had something.

Grant Melville's history had been rounded out. He had spent a month painting at a cottage he owned in Cornwall prior to his return to New York, and his death. The Scotsman had known Carney for some years, and they had worked together on a case up there. He called him.

McKee and Carney talked for some time. Half an hour later McKee was with Grant Melville's widow in the Melville house on Tenth St.

"It was that woman," she cried through her tears, "that nasty woman, that broomstick . . . She hated me, hated Grant because he married me. She was always trying to get him back, she never gave up . . ."

"That woman, that broomstick," was Grant Melville's first wife, the present Mrs. Satterlee. She couldn't bear that horrid little house up on the Cape, or those people—they were all Reds, they hated anyone who had money or lived decently, were sick with envy.

Yes, oh yes, the Satterlees were the worst, far the worst, they were always talking about social justice, on other people's cash. They'd sing a different tune if they had anything themselves. She had gone up there a couple of times when she was first married, and a couple of visits were more than enough. She told Grant then that if he wanted to paint there he would have to go by himself . . .

She had never previously seen any of the people who had answered her advertisement; she only remembered the man named Dennert because he claimed to have known Grant personally, and because he was so utterly impossible for such a charge . . . The man to whom she had entrusted it was charming, a Mr. Gillespie . . . He was a real author, he had written a splendid novel, had given her a copy . . . The title was "The Golden Spoon" and the author's name was Dawson Michaels.

"He is," Mrs. Melville said, "Mr. Gillespie is Dawson Michaels—it's a—what do you call it?" She fumbled with pseudonym, came up with pen name.

When McKee had dredged up what little else the widow actually had, he left her and mounted to the studio where men from Headquarters had preceded him, Daligan the photographer, and Finley from fingerprints.

Finley did get some prints off the trap door at the top of the stairs, through which the opportunistic thief had come and gone empty-handed on the night of the day Melville was killed. The studio itself bore out the story the Casement girl had told. The canvas was still on the easel. It was a half-finished landscape.

McKee picked it up and carried it to the window. The paint on it, half an inch thick in places, was hard and bone dry. Grant Melville had been dead a little more than four weeks—the canvas he held hadn't been touched for at least six months. Pigment that thick took a long while to dry out. This was not the canvas Melville had been working on just before his death.

Back at the office he studied the material that had come in. Dennert first. Joseph Dennert had lived in a shabby down-at-heels one-room apartment on East Eighth St. for a little over a year. The rent, $48 a month, had been paid promptly, in cash. None of the other tenants or the janitor knew much about him, where he had come from, where he worked, or for whom.

Crystabel Dolwin next. When she was in New York Miss Dolwin stayed at the Canton, a modest hotel in the West 90s, but there were long gaps. The vivacious and verbose lady was a sculptress.

Among other things, Thomas Gillespie was a liar and a bold one. McKee had the publisher of "The Golden Spoon" checked. Dawson Michaels was a pseudonym used by a prolific author who turned out books fast, and whose real name was Jansen Biggs. Mr. Biggs was currently traveling in Europe.

While Leahy, the detective on

Gillespie, was in the Parliament a lady had called. She seemed very anxious to get in touch with Mr. Gillespie, and she left a number at which he was to call her as soon as he came in. The number was REgent 3-01687, the unlisted number of Channing Hall.

The Scotsman's brows rose, Channing Hall, banker and economist, was a public figure and had been for many years. He had both inherited money and made it, so he could afford to be independent. He was in the political scene but not of it, a counselor of counselors, a man respected for his acumen and judgment, who was often consulted in national affairs.

Tell People Where We Stand, Billy Graham Asks Ike

NEW YORK (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham called on President Eisenhower Sunday night to "tell the American people exactly where we stand" on the prospect of war.

"I was told last week on good authority that there is a strong element within the Kremlin that believes that Russia should attack the United States within the next two years," he said in a sermon at the wind-up rally of his New York crusade.

Graham spoke at the Polo Grounds. He warned that war "seems more possible now than at any other time in the last 10 years."

"It would be most unfortunate if the President in his forthcoming speeches should say anything that would give the American people a false sense of security," he said.

"He should go on television and
